

Great Opportunity to Attend National Weed Science Annual Meeting in Saskatoon!

Fellow Agronomists:

It's difficult for agronomists to travel out of province to attend high profile conferences and meetings. You'll want to take advantage of the opportunity to attend the Canadian Weed Science Society Annual Meeting in Saskatoon, Nov. 20 to 23, 2017.

The Canadian Weed Science Society / Société canadienne de malherbologie (CWSS-SCM) is a vibrant scientific society that meets annually to present new research findings and to discuss current issues on a wide range of topics in weed science. The 2017 meeting is focused on information on the latest weed science innovations for agronomists and field professionals who work directly with farmers.

Although a 3-day conference, agronomists can opt to attend a one-day agronomy session entitled “Revolutionizing Weed Science with New Technologies” on Wednesday, Nov. 22. The morning session will discuss the use of unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs) in weed science and their applications in the field. Speakers include Dr. Jesper Rasmussen (University of Copenhagen), Kristina Polziehn (Axiom Agronomy Ltd.), as well as Warren Bills (Bayer CropScience) and Joe Russo (BASF), who will discuss their company's digital farming programs. In the afternoon concurrent sessions, attendees will be involved in interactive sessions about managing resistant weeds and further uses for new technologies to improve and understand weed control in agriculture. All sessions will be eligible for CEU credits.

The registration cost for the one-day “Revolutionizing Weed Science with New Technologies” is $150.00. Early bird registration for the entire 3-day conference (includes the Wednesday agronomy session) is $675.00. In addition to learning about the latest in weed control, this is a great opportunity for agronomists to network with other professionals from across Canada!

The conference will be held at the Radisson Hotel in Saskatoon.
